He also discussed the types of frauds that are most common in the corporate world. He provided practical insights to attendees around not only the issues of corporate frauds but also the modus operandi of frauds before and during COVID -19.

The session paved light on the fact that Corporate Fraud is not a new term; it has just changed its dimension during this pandemic. He discussed many examples of Corporate Frauds like; the McDonald's Case (2001); the Delhi Airport Scam (2008); the Coalgate Scam (2012); the Rajat Gupta Case (2012); the KFC case (2012); the Tata Consultancy Services Scam (2013); the Pearls Agrotech Corporation Limited Scam (2015); the Kingfisher Scam (2015); the Bank of Baroda Case (2015) etc.

The speaker rightly explained that the crisis of COVID – 19 might provide a fertile ground for frauds. The combination of financial and health threats makes people more vulnerable and creates opportunities for these fraudsters. It was an enlightening session, wherein the speaker also discussed the legislations related to frauds in India. Fraudulent practices would always attract negative results; this aspect was highlighted by the speaker when he mentioned the consequences of the corporate fraud. He also outlined that significant measures are needed to build a robust mechanism to prevent frauds during these testing times.
