Convener: Prof. (Dr.) Vinita Gupta & Mr. Vijaypal Singh

The Department of Journalism & Mass Communication organized a visit for journalism students on 12 April 2023 to attend the "Vivekananda Sustainability Summit" held at the Dr. Ambedkar International Centre in New Delhi. The purpose of the visit was to provide students with an opportunity to learn about various topics related to sustainable development. The event covered a wide range of subjects, including Green Hydrogen, Himalayan Sustainability, its impact on the Indian subcontinent, and the youth's contribution to environmental conservation. The summit included a conference, expo, and an award distribution program. The presence of distinguished guests such as Shri Nitin Gadkari, the Minister of Road Transport and Highways, and Shri Ashwini Kumar Choubey, the Minister of State for Environment Forest and Climate Change, added to the significance of the event.

The main focus of the visit was to emphasize the crucial role of youth in working on ecology and the environment. With 60% of India's population being between 18 to 35 years old, the youth have the potential to make significant contributions to the overall development of the country. The visit proved to be extremely successful as it provided the students with realistic insights into the importance of sustainable development. They had the opportunity to learn from experts in the field, understand the current initiatives and challenges, and witness the recognition given to individuals and organizations making notable contributions to sustainability. Overall, the visit to the "Vivekananda Sustainability Summit" at the Dr. Ambedkar International Centre was a valuable experience for the journalism students, broadening their understanding of sustainable development and highlighting the significant role that young people can play in shaping the future of India.
