Introduction

The Department of Economics and the Training and Placement Cell (TPC) of Maharaja Agrasen Institute of Management Studies (MAIMS) organised a Teacher's Day activity on 3 September 2026 to provide students with an opportunity to express gratitude towards their teachers. Students were invited to write heartfelt messages for their teachers and submit their entries through a Google Form.

The activity was organised by the Training and Placement Cell of the Department of Economics in association with ICFAI Business School (IBS). The IBS team visited MAIMS and conducted the Teacher's Day message-writing competition. The initiative encouraged students to reflect on the role of teachers in guiding, inspiring, and shaping their academic and personal development.

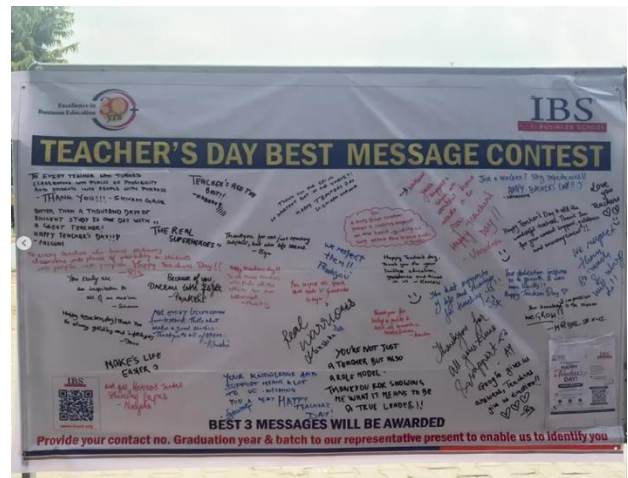

Key Highlights of the Activity

The central idea of the activity was to celebrate teachers by providing students with a platform to share their thoughts, memories, and words of appreciation. Students were encouraged to write sincere and meaningful messages for teachers who had inspired, guided, or supported them. The activity focused on gratitude and recognition of the contribution made by teachers in students' lives.

Participation was organised through an online Google Form. After writing their messages, students scanned the QR code provided in the event poster and submitted their entries. The online format made participation simple and accessible while allowing students to express their feelings in their own words.

A key feature was the message-writing competition conducted by IBS. The top three messages were selected for exciting prizes, motivating students to participate actively and put thought and sincerity into their entries. The competition added enthusiasm while keeping the purpose centred on appreciation and respect for teachers.

Winner were Somya Gulati, Alisha and Hitesh from MAIMS. The activity also highlighted the value of expressing gratitude through simple and meaningful gestures. By acknowledging teachers who had made a difference in their journey, students were given a creative opportunity to communicate their appreciation and recognise the lasting influence of teachers. Overall, the activity provided a meaningful platform for students to express their appreciation and highlighted the important role of teachers in inspiring, guiding, and shaping the future of students. . The seminar was successfully conducted under the able guidance of Prof. (Dr.) Gaurav Aggarwal, HOD, Department of Economics and Ms. Kamna Vaid, Training & Placement Officer, Department of Economics.
